Self advocates will have the opportunity to:

- learn and have conversations about issues that affect their lives
- develop tools that they can use to help them and other people with developmental disabilities be stronger advocates, more self-determined, and build more relationships
- celebrate ability and accomplishment
- meet and socialize with people from across the country
- be part of developing strategies to address issues that people with disabilities all over the country face
- be part of the celebration of a social movement

WAYS TO ATTEND:

Save your money and make your own arrangements. It will cost about $1,400, which includes airfare, hotel, registration, and meals. Go to www.sabeusa.org to register and get information hotel reservations. You will also need to pay for and reserve your own airline ticket. Please let the Council staff know that you are planning on attending!

Apply for a Scholarship. If you have never received Council monies to attend a SABE conference before, the Utah DD Council has five (5) scholarships available. All expenses will be paid for except a few meals. Expect to bring about $50 to cover those meals. You will also be expected to share a hotel room with someone else. Call the Council office or go to www.utahddc.org to fill out an application. Deadline for application is June 30, 2010 at noon.
